

Organization of some types of intentional movements

Skorinkin A.

Kazan Federal University, 420008, Kremlevskaya 18, Kazan, Russia

Abstract

A possible organization of motor control during moving from a distant point to a purposive one is considered as a way of reduction of three excessive degrees of freedom at hierarchically coordinated levels of motor control. Computer simulation of such movement organization showed its insensitivity to dynamic noise, fluctuations in driving parameters, deviations, delays, and «clutches» of separate joints.
